Notes for Konrad Krieger:

This genealogy history of the Krieger family was extracted from the archives in Saratov, Russia when the records became accessible due to the change in government. Rachel Krieger Holmes took advantage of this opportunity in 1991 and immediately hired Dr. Igor Plehve, a professor at the University of Saratov, to research the available records.

After several months of gathering and compiling vital records, the chart was completed. It begins with Konrad and his wife Katarina who were part of the group that founded Norka, August 15, 1767. There are 196 descendants (113 male, 83 female) born between 1773 and 1860 entered in the compilation.

There is some thought that John and Anna may have passed through Ohio and Nebraska before settling near Lehigh, Kansas in Marion County. John made and sold a healing salve which he marketed in a flat round tin about four inches in diameter and called it Krieger's Salve. It was cooked and looked like Mentholatum. He traveled throughout the area in a sulky and sold the salve which was applied topically. Joh, Anna and probably Phillip, the oldest son, later moved to Herington, Kansas where John and Anna are probably buried.

Elizabeth was 9 years old when her family left Russia. There were 9 children in the family. They took all their clothes and bedding and put them on a pushcart along with the smaller children and pushed it 20 miles to Saratov Russia to get on a cattle car on the railway. They put some of the bedding down on the floor and put the little ones on it with bigger children around them to keep from freezing. It was early October. They traveled to France and got on an old freighter for another 4-5 weeks in the stinking hole. The weather was so bad they only got on dick 3 or 4 days. She said she would never forget it as long as she lived. She and Grandad (John George) lived in a sod dugout in the side of a hill when they were first married in 1883. She married (2) Robert Freeman Cassidy 23 Apr 1994 in Escondido, California. He was born 28 Jan 1920 in Pueblo, CO.

Notes for Marjorye Pauline Krieger:

KOMALTY...Sec. 27, T7N, R3W.... Komalty is 5 miles northeast of Hobart, and had a post office from Dec. 6, 1901 to March 31, 1938. It was named for Ko-mal-to, chief of a band of Kiowa Indians who had a camp nearby. The town had a grocery store, lumberyard, coal and feed yard, cafe, doctor and the Rock Island Depot. There were 2 grain elevators built, one owned by C.G. Long and one owned by the Farmers Co-op. On Nov. 1, 1946, a petition was filed in Kiowa County Court to vacate the town site and it looks much like the surrounding farm land. All business buildings and houses have disappeared. All that remains to show there was a thriving town is the elevator still owned by Farmers Co-op a quarter mile south of the original town.

Just for whatever it is worth....All the time I went to school there (1928-1935) through 8th grade, there was a door that went out on the small porch that surrounded the cistern that was always used in hot weather along with the hall door in the front as well as the windows. We always drank the cistern water but it was usually poured into a water cooler and the cups filled from it. My Dad was on the school board all that time and I am sure he made sure the cistern water was treated every year (probably potassium permanganate) to avoid typhoid outbreaks. Typhoid was very common because people either didn't know or simply didn't treat all drinking/cooking water. There was also a stone-walled cellar (often called the cave) with heavy door for storm protection, and a "coal house" that held about four feet deep coal that heated the schoolhouse in the winter. The teacher would sometimes ask the "older boys" to bring in more coal but it was always her responsibility to have the fire going every morning before school started. The floors were pine flooring but heavily oiled to preserve the wood from moisture. Playground equipment consisted of two seesaws, one swing, and an "acting rod" that you could hang from by hooking your knees over the rod and swinging. The teacher also supplied a baseball, a bat, and an old glove for the catcher. We had a couple of baseball games when two neighboring schools came on a Friday to play against us. Our team always had some girls as well as boys.
